Aluminium windows and doors

Aluminium's unique combination of strength and lightness enables frames, sashes and fittings to be neat and unobtrusive. Because the frames, rails and stiles can be finer than those made in wood, they allow maximum entry of light and provide unobstructed views.

Aluminium doesn't require painting while its dimensional stability ensures years of trouble free operation.

Aluminium windows and doors come powder coated in a range of colours to match your home, but it's important to choose frame colours carefully as powder coated surfaces cannot be repainted.

Plan before you buy

Whether you're building or renovating, choosing the right windows and doors for your home is as important as choosing the architectural style itself. Usually covering more than half the surface area of the average house, the right window and door choice can make a home inviting from the outside, appear more spacious from the inside, enhance the architectural style and increase the value of the house.

There are many issues to consider before you can choose the right window or door for your home.

Apart from how it looks, there are the practicalities – location, how it opens, how much ventilation you want, and most importantly whether the product you buy is suitable for its intended purpose.

As you will probably only buy windows and doors once or twice in your lifetime, it is a decision that you should consider carefully.

At Stegbar we have built a reputation based on innovative design, unsurpassed craftsmanship, leading edge technology, and uncompromising customer service.

Our professionally trained sales consultants will help you find the perfect solution for your home.

Bushfire rated range

Living in the Australian bush offers a lifestyle beyond compare. But the threat of bushfires is never far from your doorstep and needs to be considered when building or renovating in such an idyllic setting.

Australian homes need innovative windows and doors to brave our harsh environment, to help control temperature and light and to look good inside and out.

With this in mind, Stegbar has developed – and extensively tested – a range of aluminium and cedar windows and doors that meet BAL 40 certification, giving you peace of mind against the threat of bushfires. The range eliminates the need for bulky shutters, fire curtains or screens on fixed glazing.

For more information refer to the Stegbar Bushfire brochure available at stegbar.com.au

Window and door styles

A window consists of an outer frame that goes in the hole in the wall, and a sash frame that holds the glass. The style of the window refers to how the sash operates or opens within the outer frame.

There are four traditional styles of windows – double hung, awning, casement, and sliding. The one that is most appropriate for you can depend on a number of factors such as how they operate and how much ventilation they allow.

Where you place doors and the style that you use will have a substantial impact not only on how you enter or exit your home, but also on the functionality of rooms and the safety and security of your home.

Doors are available in three styles – hinged, bi-fold and sliding. Like windows, selecting the most appropriate door style depends on a number of factors.

Talk to Stegbar about what is best for you and your home.

Bi-fold patio doors have a series of between 2 to 7 doors, hinged so they fold onto themselves.

Sliding patio doors have two or more panels which slide past each other horizontally within the frame.

Hinged doors are hinged on either the left or the right and can open either inwards or outwards.

Double hung windows have two vertically sliding sashes which slide past each other in a single frame.

Single hung windows have one fixed and one opening sash.

Awning windows are hinged along the top horizontal edge and the bottom opens outwards.

Casement windows are either hinged along a vertical edge or pivoted on the top and bottom, and open outwards from the opposite side.

Sliding windows have two or more sashes, which slide past each other horizontally within the frame.
